SYNOPSIS

Bout I—Bennie Lane, a hard working clerk in the office of Eli Graham is helping his crippled brother through college. Bennie needs $150 for his brother's tuition but hasn't the nerve to ask Graham for it. On his way home from work he saves his brother from attack by some ruffians. A fight manager whose meal-ticket has deserted him, watches Bennie fight and urges him to quit the office for the prize ring. At the behest of Graham's daughter, Helen, Bennie accepts the offer. He knocks out his opponent, only to find that during the fight the hall has caught fire and that the referee has run away. Picking up his opponent he carries him to the street, finds the referee and receives credit for the knockout.
